Australian Cruiser, Sloop Believed Lost With 833 Crewmen

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

MELBOURNE, Saturday, March 14.—Apparent loss of the Australian cruiser Perth and sloop Yarra with their 833 men in the withdrawal from Java was announced by Prime Minister John Curtin today as the Japanese pushed new naval forces into the Solomon Islands northeast of this continent.

Curtin said the ships, both noted stepping-stone islands which curve for operations last year in the Middle East, had fought successfully and without damage in the battles of the Java sea but had not been heard from since they left a Java port for home. Their fate is not known, but they are presumed to have been sunk.

Naval sources said possibly some of the 882 men of the Perth and the 151 of the Yarra had reached land.

The Japanese claimed on March 3 that they had sunk 23 United Nations warships off Java on the weekend of March 1, including the Perth and her sister ship, the Hobart.

The 6,980-ton Perth was damaged by German bombs last summer when she participated in the British evacuation of Crete. She was built in England in 1934.

The Yarra, only 1,060 tons, was hailed by all Australia last October when she and a merchant cruiser captured seven Axis ships in the Persian gulf.

Announcement of the presumed losses came as the Japanese were pushing into the Solomon Islands, in the Melanesian group which shelters Australia and New Zealand on the east and north. This thrust followed battering of Japanese positions on New Guinea and New Britain by American and Australian bombers.

The thrust apparently was aimed at guarding the right flank of any Japanese venture against east Australia; increasing the danger to supply lines from the United States; and threatening the

N. Y. Building Hit by Shell of Antiplane Gun

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—

A random shot from an anti-aircraft battery, whose gunners accidentally let go with eight shells, today chipped a piece of one of New York's financial towers with a crash that brought the war into Wall street's citadel.

The "direct hit," which sent dozens of police cars and fire trucks into action and caused at least one air raid warden to prepare to lead some 200 workers to shelter, knocked pieces of brick from a ledge between the 37th and 38th floors of the 40-story Equitable building at 120 Broadway. Brick dust particles and fragments of steel fell into the street below.

Fragments showered on window ledges of the Bankers Club, on the 38th floor, and flew into open windows on the lower floors, but no one was reported injured and no windows were shattered. Luckily no one was struck by the two-inch sections of steel which detectives discovered on the pavement.

Major General Sanderford Jarman, commanding general of the Anti-aircraft Artillery Command, eastern theater of operations, issued this statement late today:

"At about 3:30 p. m. this date, one of the automatic anti-aircraft weapons located along the East river accidentally discharged eight rounds. As far as can be learned to date, seven of these rounds are believed to have fallen into the river and one to have hit 120 Broadway, knocking out a few bricks."

"Preliminary investigation indicates that the accident occurred through some mechanical failure in the firing mechanism of the gun. Further investigation is being carried out."

Accidental or mistaken firing on the part of anti-aircraft batteries was not infrequent in Europe at the start of the war. In the first week of September, 1939, A-A guns south of London shot down a British fighter plane during a false alert, but the pilot bailed out and rejoined his command by taxi.

HISTORY, CHAPTER 1942—The storied streets of London have echoed to the strutting tread of the conqueror, the mincing step of the courtier, the prancing hoofbeats of royal steeds, and now—"peep, peep," here comes the jeep. Four American doughboys ride down a London street in one of these pert little war wagons of Uncle Sam. Note how they are overshadowed by the familiar London double-decked bus.

Reds, Not Germans, To Be Aggressors in Spring, Soviets Say

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

MOSCOW, March 13.—Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's massive Ukrainian offensive was slowly beating forward tonight, a week ahead of the return of calendar spring to Russia, and in every other sector of the front Soviet troops were simultaneously hacking their way westward.

RAF Smashes At Germans in Endless Relays

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—

Squadron after squadron of the Royal Air Force swarmed over northern France from the Belgian border to Paris today in the biggest daylight raids yet of the new spring offensive and at least eight German fighters were knocked down in one clash alone.

The round-the-clock assault continued without letup tonight and the coast from Boulogne to Ostend was alight with exploding bombs and anti-aircraft gun flashes. Clusters of searchlight batteries fingered the sky above Cap Gris Nez.

The British announced the loss of five of their own fighters which swept to the attack "in force" following a fiery overnight assault upon the 26,000-ton Nazi battleship Gneisenau at Kiel. No British bombers were lost today.

The biggest scrap of the day occurred near Hazebruck, about midway between Armentieres and St. Omer, where the railroad yard of this industrial center was the target of RAF bombers.

The RAF's ace squadron leader Paddy Finucane, just out of the hospital with wound stripes, led the attack, bagging two German planes for a war total of 26.

The official publication of the Russian armies, Red Star, declared that Russian arms had so firmly seized the initiative that the new season would bring not the long threatened German counteroffensive but rather a continuation of aggressive action against Hitler's "worn out army."

A special Russian announcement listed 14,000 Germans killed on the northwestern front in 15 days, making a grand total of 63,700 Nazis officially reported slain between Leningrad and Moscow within a month.

Latest Toll. The announcement said the latest recorded toll was inflicted on Hitler's invaders between February 22 and March 10 on the northwestern front below Leningrad. In this area the Red army liberated 84 towns and villages, the Russians announced.

It followed by two days another special communiqué telling of the killing of 49,700 Germans on the Kalinin front, stretching north of the Smolensk area toward Lake Ilmen, from February 8 to March 5.

Vast quantities of booty fell into the hands of the victorious Soviet forces, and 91 German planes—including 60 big three-engine transports used by Hitler in a vain effort to reinforce his trapped 16th Army at Staraya Russa—were declared destroyed.

Listed as captured were 226 horses, two railway locomotives and 14 cars loaded with equipment, 2,500 assorted guns, 14 tanks, more than 800 motor vehicles and 23 fuel and provision dumps.

Somewhere in the south (where Timoshenko was reported by Russian sources in London to be attacking with more than a million men on a vast front extending from the sea of Azov northward to the upper Ukraine) military dispatches announced two Nazi fortified areas had been smashed and spoke of toe-to-toe fighting in the streets of Donetsk Basin towns.

On Defensive.

(The German "high command admitted the Nazi forces were on the defensive in the Donetsk Basin of the Ukraine, counterattacking "strong enemy forces." British military observers assumed that Timoshenko was trying to recapture the whole of the Dnieper river bend. His advance troops already had been reported within 30 miles of the bend in the area northeast of Dnepropetrovsk.)

Three southern front settlements, one of them a railway station, were cleared of the invader in tank, artillery and infantry fighting.

Action also was violent far to the north in the Kalinin sector northwest of Moscow, where concentrated German counterthrusts were declared bloodily broken with 2,000 Nazis killed in a single action.

Farther North. Still farther north, the mid-day communiqué of the Soviet command announced, another thousand of the invaders fell before the Russian Leninist forces now thrusting out well to the west.

Somewhere in that northern region—and presumably at Lake Ilmen—the Russian air arm was in strong offensive action, reporting the destruction of a group of eight German planes before they could leave the ice on which they stood.

Returning to that same improvised Nazi airfield later in the day, Soviet airmen again destroyed grounded planes. Moreover, three German fighter craft were shot down in the resulting dogfight and four more were crippled and forced to land.

The Frenchmen were shot by firing squads last Monday, it said.

City Council Accepts LeCraw Resignation

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

City council yesterday afternoon accepted the resignation of Mayor LeCraw, who will today report for active duty as a major in the chemical warfare department of the Army, becoming the first chief executive of an American city to relinquish his post to join the all-out war effort.

The resignation was accepted when LeCraw insisted for a second time that council do so. It abandoned a vote on a proposal to give him a leave of absence.

The resignation becomes effective when he reports for duty in the city, instructed by Major General E. S. Adams, adjutant general of the United States Army.

No Election Date. No action to establish a registration list or to set a date for the election of a successor to LeCraw was taken, but these will be presented at Monday's council session. May 27 appeared to be the probable date for the contest.

The city Democratic executive committee last night spiked reports it would hold a special primary for nomination of a mayor when committee members decided unanimously against taking any action.

Arthur Johnson, chairman, announced the decision was made at the quarterly dinner of the committee in the Robert Fulton hotel.

The committee instructed T. Elton Drake, attorney and chairman of the group's legislative committee, to proceed to prepare legislation providing for nomination of councilmen and board of education members by wards rather than by the city at large.

Five To Seek Office. Five persons yesterday said they will seek the job vacated by LeCraw. Aldermen G. Dan Bridges, Ed A. Gilliam and Frank Reynolds and Councilman John A. White and Dewey L. Johnson, city superintendent of electrical affairs and president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, have said they would be candidates.

There was some conversation after council's action that a group

Soldiers Taken After Slaying Of FBI Agent

ABINGDON, Va., March 13.—

(AP)—Two young Army deserters, waving an improvised white flag after a gun battle which resulted in the death of one FBI agent and the wounding of another, stumbled from a tear gas filled house here this afternoon and surrendered.

The soldiers had been sought since early this morning when FBI Agent Hubert J. Tracy Jr., 28, was killed and Agent Charles L. Tignor, 29, wounded as they sought to arrest the pair in an all-night Abingdon cafe.

The fugitives, listed by the FBI as deserters from Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., were Charles J. Lovett, 21, Philadelphia, and James Edward Testerman, 22, Clinchburg, Va.

They escaped through a cemetery after blazing away—service pistols in each hand—at the FBI agents and immediately became objects of an intensive search by more than 100 federal, state and county officers who rushed here by car and plane.

Hoover Takes Over.

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, took over personal direction of the hunt from his headquarters in Washington and immediately became so tightly and so swiftly that the soldiers got no farther than an abandoned house on the outskirts of this southwest Virginia town.

Police encircled the house and a number of shots were exchanged, with no one injured, until tear gas could be projected into the riddled structure.

Choking and stumbling through tear gas fumes, the men emerged from a doorway with upraised arms and gave themselves up. FBI agents bundled them into an automobile and took them to the jail at Bristol, Va.

Tracy, the 13th G-man to die in action, was born in New York City, received an A. B. degree from Georgetown University and a law degree from St. John's University, Brooklyn. He joined the FBI in April, 1941, and served in Pittsburgh before being assigned to the Richmond office.

Tignor, native of Hindman, Ky., and graduate of the University of Kentucky, was shot four times

Politics Is Out During Wartime, Roosevelt Asserts

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told a press conference today that this is a war and politics is out.

He said his remarks applied to congress as well as the press. We read too much politics in the papers these days and these articles talk in terms of the past, he commented.

Mr. Roosevelt made that remark when asked whether he thought there could be a greater concentration on the war effort by political groups, newspapers and others.

To a question as to whether his remarks were "also true of the cabinet," the chief executive responded that he found little political implications in any action taken by cabinet members. He said whenever he sees any such implication, and this is in pretty rare cases, he steps on it with both feet.

He was informed that Postmaster General Frank Walker had been consulting with some Pennsylvanians on Pennsylvania political matters. That, Mr. Roosevelt said, is a Pennsylvania matter, and he drew from his questioner a statement that Walker's home is at Scranton, Pa.

He drew the inference plainly that he considered it proper for a cabinet member to interest himself in a political matter of his own state.

Girl 15, Slays Father For Beating Her

Admits Killing Him With Shotgun as He Lay on Couch.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 13.—(AP)—A motherless, 15-year-old farm girl calmly related today, District Attorney C. A. Whitehouse said, that she shot and killed her father with a shotgun as he lay on a couch because "he beat me once too often."

Peter Peoletti, 44, was found late yesterday in his isolated Schuylkill county home, near Valley View, the back of his head blown off.

Whitehouse said a charge of murder would be filed against the girl, Emma, who had lived alone with her father since her mother's death several years ago.

The district attorney said the girl told him her father had abused her frequently.

"He chastised her at noon yesterday and then went to sleep on the couch," he quoted her. "She said she made up her mind then to shoot him and got the shotgun and loaded it. At 3 o'clock, her father awoke and as he raised himself on one elbow, she shot him."

She then fled to the home of two brothers who live near this eastern Pennsylvania town. County detectives said the brothers also told of ill treatment at the hands of their father.

J. Pierpont Morgan Visits Jekyll Island

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 13.—J. Pierpont Morgan, noted financier who has been spending two weeks on Jekyll Island, millionaire resort off the Georgia coast, left Thursday by automobile for New York.

Soldiers Taken Prisoner

in the chest. Abingdon hospital attendants reported his condition was "fair."

The FBI gave this account of events leading up to the shooting: Lovett and Testerman, both privates in the Third Cavalry, beat a Fort Oglethorpe sentry severely and left there with four .45 caliber pistols and 100 rounds of ammunition. Next they held up a Chattanooga, Tenn., taxi driver and forced him to drive them to Cleveland, Tenn. Putting the driver out at Cleveland, the men drove to Sweetwater, Tenn., and abandoned the cab.

Tipped that the men were headed for Abingdon, agents Treacy and Tignor were on the lookout when they entered the restaurant. The soldiers opened fire when the agents identified themselves. Treacy was killed instantly and Tignor, wounded once in the face, followed the pair to the street, where he was killed.

Still dressed in Army uniforms and brandishing their pistols, the soldiers commandeered one automobile but Town Policeman Troy Combs jammed his own car into it. They attempted to take over another car, but the driver, Mrs. Elizabeth Kreger, threw the keys away. The men then fled into a nearby cemetery.

Taxi Driver Was Threatened

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 13.—(AP)—"Don't move an inch or we'll drill you."

Those were the words of two Fort Oglethorpe Army deserters after seriously wounding an Army sentry and starting their mad dash for freedom, climaxed with the slaying of an FBI agent and their subsequent capture.

Charles F. Landreth, Chattanooga taxi driver, kidnapped by the soldiers, Charles J. Lovett and James E. Testerman, said the men seized his cab near the Army post with the "we'll drill you" threat.

"We've got you covered and if you don't do what we say we'll let you have it," they told Landreth as they entered his cab and added, "We're getting out of this damn Army."

Landreth said one of the men held a gun at the back of his neck and the other jammed one in his ribs.

"I never was very scared," he said. "I laughed with them and sometimes, when they stopped cursing long enough, I'd curse them a while. They were very nasty-looking and vulgar. They got on my nerves."

Landreth said he was freed by the men about 25 miles from Chattanooga. His cab later was found on the road leading to Abingdon, where the FBI agent was slain and the soldiers captured.

Two AWOL Men Urged To Give Up

PANAMA CITY, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—Two Tyndall Field privates who went AWOL yesterday, heavily armed and in an Army car, were urged publicly by a superior officer today to give themselves up "because desertion is a serious charge."

Major H. M. Clavoe, post executive at the Air Corps gunnery base here, said military charges of desertion and larceny will be lodged against them.

General Bryden New Head of 4th Corps Area

Commander Is Expert in Administration, Field Artillery.

Major General William Bryden, deputy chief of staff and a soldier of long experience in field artillery and Army administration, yesterday was named commander of the Fourth Corps Area.

General Bryden succeeds Major General John P. Smith, who was transferred to Washington several days ago as director of administrative services under the new streamlined Army service of supply.

A War Department spokesman at Washington, where the new appointment was announced, said the new corps commander was expected to take over his duties Monday.

General Bryden was born in Hartford, Conn., in 1880 and was graduated as a second lieutenant from West Point in 1904.

His first active service was with the 13th Battery, Field Artillery, at old Fort A. D. Russell, now Fort Francis E. Warren, Wyo. Following service there from 1904 to 1906, he was ordered to the Philippines, where he remained for two years. He then returned to the United States to serve briefly at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., before being transferred to West Point as a mathematics instructor. He remained there from 1908 to 1914.

Wins Army Award. Leaving West Point, General Bryden next attended the school of fire for field artillery at Fort Sill, Okla., until 1916, when he was transferred to general staff headquarters, central department, in Chicago.

From August to October, 1917, he commanded the 329th Field Artillery at Camp Custer, Mich., and during the following year was director of field gunnery and assistant commandant of the school of fire at Fort Sill.

For "exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service" in formulating and directing courses of instruction at the school of fire he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, one of the Army's highest.

In May, 1919, General Bryden was ordered to Europe to attend the Army center of artillery school at Treves, Germany. He returned to this country in August to serve as a member of the General Staff Corps until 1922.

The general then entered the command and general staff school, and on graduation remained as an instructor until 1927, when he studied at the Army War College and served as executive officer of the office of chief of Field Artillery until 1931.

Ordered to Hawaii until 1934, then to Fort Meade, Md., he returned to Washington in 1935 as chief of the mobilization branch of the War Department operating and training division. He held this position until June, 1940, when he was named deputy chief of staff.

General Bryden's promotions came in the following order: First Lieutenant January 25, 1907; captain January 10, 1915; major (temporary) August 5, 1917; lieutenant colonel (temporary) the same day; to colonel (temporary) on June 26, 1918; and to brigadier general (temporary) on October 1, 1918. He reverted to the permanent rank of major February 10, 1919, and was promoted to lieutenant colonel, Regular Army, March 10, 1929; to colonel, May 1, 1935; to brigadier general, September 1, 1937; and to major general September 25, 1940.

Delicate Issue Of Pay Control Being Studied

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—High administration circles are studying the delicate question of wartime wage control, President Roosevelt disclosed today, and, independently, a bi-partisan congressional group is strongly advocating such an overtime pay in war industry.

Under the circumstances it appeared that the chief executive had only to indicate his approval or lack of opposition, and wage control would receive substantial backing in both houses of congress.

The administration regards such control as purely an anti-inflationary step, supplementing the price control law. Together with heavy income taxation it would be intended to prevent such an accumulation of public purchasing power as would exert an irresistible upward pressure on prices.

Mr. Roosevelt, telling a press conference only that the question was under study, declined to go into details.

Labor unions are opposed to wage control and that is what makes the question a delicate one. All the members of the house and a third of the senate are up for re-election in November. Not many are anxious to court, deliberately, the opposition of organized labor.

Wavell Relies On Mobility, Aerial Power

Says Russia Is 'Pistol Pointed at Heart of Japan.'

NEW DELHI, India, March 13.—(AP)—Britain's Wavell disclosed tonight his plans for defending eastern India with mobile ground forces and a hard-hitting air arm capable of both defense and attack, and dropped the significant hint that from the other side Soviet Russia, right now, is "a pistol pointed at the heart" of Japan.

Now general officer commanding both India and Burma, General Sir Archibald P. Wavell outlined in broad detail his problems, tasks and hopes at an unusual press conference.

Wavell termed the defense of India a problem "of very close cooperation between the three services and of treating it as such; of building up a strong air force in northeast India which will not content itself with defense "but will attack the enemy and will be one of our principal means of safeguarding India."

New airdromes are being built and the present air strength is being reinforced constantly. Wavell declared, and regular naval forces are being augmented by armed flotillas of vessels requisitioned from civilian uses.

"Every preparation is being made to meet the threat of a sea-borne Japanese expedition," he added.

"On land it obviously is impossible to construct beach defenses as has been done in England. It is our intention to meet the possibility of invasion by mobility and attack and not by attempting to hold defensive lines."

"The defense of India will be based mainly on holding within striking distance of threatened points mobile reserves which can move to meet and attack the enemy. Defenses are being prepared at important communications centers and river crossings to serve as points of maneuvers for these services—to give them a rapidity and security of movement which will be denied to the enemy."

Taylor Cites Advertising's Value in War

Association Hears Address by Undersecretary of Commerce.

CHICAGO, March 13.—(AP)—The continuing value of advertising as a medium for furthering the war effort was emphasized today by Undersecretary of Commerce Wayne Chatfield Taylor in an address before a regional meeting of the National Industrial Advertisers' Association.

"Many of you are directly contributing to the war effort by the practical information which you are giving to those who use what you manufacture," he said.

"There is no competition now as we have known it. The one customer we all have is our country's existence, and it will help to meet its demands if you use the space you buy to pass along information that will help your industry do a better job—news of improved methods, of saving in time and man-hours, as well as news of new devices which apply only to your variety of product."

President William Donald Murphy of the association told the gathering that advertising "like the B-1 energy vitamin, does not carry on indefinitely by its own momentum. Its energy is constantly used up and must be constantly renewed."

He urged an active continuation of advertising schedules publicizing "the war use of your product, its availability, its operation, and how to conserve and maintain it."

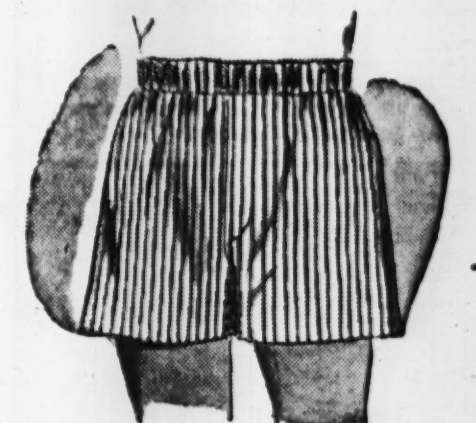

Industry, he said, should move to convert voluntarily to essential production "before conscription," asserting: "The time for volunteering is very nearly past."

You'll certainly smile again if you use Constitution Want Ads.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 14, 1942.

Military "Expert!"

Senator Bennett Clark, of Missouri, has introduced a bill in congress providing for the imposition of a unified command for the Army and Navy.

This is a serious move, contrary to all military experience and providing, in effect, a sub-command below the already unified high command represented in the person of the President.

It would be assumed that a senator introducing such legislation would have thoroughly studied the effects of such a change; that he would be a keen student of military affairs; that he would have a record in which the people of the country could have faith in his good judgment and his good intent.

Let's look at the record:

Senator Clark strenuously opposed the fortification of Guam, even to the extent that he went around the country voicing his opposition and seeking to convince others of the grave danger of what he termed an affront to Japan. Senator Clark voted against the first revision of the Neutrality Act which permitted cash-and-carry sale of arms.

Senator Clark voted against the first draft bill.

Senator Clark voted "no" on the first lease-lend bill.

Senator Clark voted against the first $7,000,000,000 lease-lend appropriation.

Senator Clark voted "no" on extension of draft service beyond one year, without which this country would have been almost helpless when the Japanese did attack.

Senator Clark voted against the second lease-lend bill embodying aid to Russia.

Senator Clark voted "no" on repeal of the Neutrality Act a month before the Japanese struck.

His first affirmative vote for defense measures did not come until December 18, 1941, after the Japanese struck. This vote was for "duration" draft extension.

All of which does not make for a very pretty record, especially for a member of the Foreign Relations Committee of the senate, with all of that committee's sources of information. Clark also is a member of the committees on finance, commerce (which also had access to records detailing Germany's intentions), territories and insular affairs, and is chairman of the committee on inter-oceanic canals. He also is a member of the special committee on conservation of wildlife resources.

Senator Clark also is distinguished for his record "plug" which all senators insert in the Congressional Directory. His laudatory effusion runs 41 lines, more than that of any other senator. It contrasts vividly with the 17 lines devoted to Vice President Wallace and the four lines which tell the story of his fellow-senator from Missouri.

This is the man who now seeks to impose a military structure that could only create confusion in every branch of the armed services. A bill which will only maintain confusion as long as it is in the congressional hopper. A bill which will take valuable time of high officers who must appear at hearings and who must, to defend the military structure that has existed almost from the beginnings of the republic, prepare the evidence that must be used against it.

This is a man who demonstrated his isolationist idiocies before the war and now seeks to perpetrate still others without the slightest degree of valid knowledge upon which to base his arguments.

Ration Cards

The petroleum industry has recommended a system of card rationing for gasoline in the eastern part of the nation, with the object of reducing consumption by 25 per cent. This curtailment in gasoline use is made necessary, it was stated, because of sinkings and war diversion of tankers.

However, stating it might require several weeks for the necessary rationing cards to be printed, the industry suggests immediate cut of 25 per cent in gasoline deliveries to filling stations and re-establishment of the curfew on stations, limiting their operating hours to those between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m.

Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes, while admitting the situation is "very acute," could not say to what extent he would follow the industry recommendations.

There is one situation in connection with all rationing proposals which seems obviously unnecessary. That is the accepted as unavoidable delay for the printing of ration cards.

It is now some weeks since it was definitely stated sugar would be rationed, yet no further word of this plan has been forthcoming. The explanation for the delay given is that it takes time to print the ration books.

Now, even before the plan is accepted, the petroleum men take it for granted there will be long delay in getting gasoline ration cards printed.

This is all because government bureaus and departments seem to function on the idea that the only place where federal printing can be done is in the Bureau of Printing at Washington. That agency is terribly swamped. They have been compelled to operate 24 hours a day on printing defense stamps and bonds alone, so great has been the demand.

Now, to load upon the same personnel and equipment the printing of ration cards for this, that or the other commodity is unreasonable.

There are plenty of splendidly equipped and thoroughly reliable printing establishments in every state to print, in quick time, as many ration cards as the government desires. There need be no fear any will lend themselves to the bootlegging of these cards, if the most rudimentary care is taken in awarding the contracts and providing proper supervision.

There is no reason why every ration card, for any commodity, needed in Georgia throughout the entire duration of the war should not be printed in this state.

The Federal Bureau of Printing and Engraving could well follow the example of war industry generally and ease the burden on its own shoulders—and obviate a lot of irritating and costly delay—by adopting a system of sub-contracts to commercial printing houses all over the country.

The Only Wise Course

Decision by Atlanta's Municipal Defense Council to purchase 250 electrically operated sirens to be used exclusively as air raid warning signals was the only wise and proper course open. That is, if this city is to have an efficient system for defense against possible enemy air raids. If we do not have these adequate warning sirens, most of our effort to create effective civilian defense organization is wasted. No machinery for defense in case of raids can be put into operation of the personnel of the organization and the entire public cannot hear, and instantly recognize, the warning sound.

The defense council, at the same time, decreed that sirens are not to be used for any purpose, in the future, save as air raid warning. The finance committee of council will be asked for funds to buy exhaust whistles to replace sirens now used for fire, police, ambulance and other city operated equipment.

With the decision to buy this signal system, which will cost approximately $10,000 for the city, the local defense organization moves into truly worth-while and effective development. Teaching of wardens, auxiliary police and firemen and other types of volunteer workers is well started and there is good ground to believe, now, that in due time the civilian defense organization for Atlanta will be as nearly perfect as can be expected under local conditions.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WHAT NEXT? WASHINGTON, March 13.—Ever since it was apparent Java was destined to suffer the same fate as the Malayan Peninsula, Singapore and other islands in the East Indies area, speculation has been rife in military circles as to the future direction of Japanese attack.

Outside of the Axis high command, anyone's guess was seemingly as good as another's. The tacticians were agreed on only one thing, that Japan was unlikely to sit back and rest on her laurels, assuming a defensive position after all the spectacular victories she has gained.

On the theory that the Axis must keep the initiative to win, moving quickly before time is allowed for the huge American arms production program to shift the balance of power, the Japs have been expected to strike anew in one of three directions after a brief lull necessary to reorganize their forces. Most observers seemed to think last week that the next blow following the fall of Java would be struck in India or Siberia, rather than against Australia, the last remaining important foothold of the United Nations in the south Pacific.

Because of the concentration of British imperial and American forces in this last major foothold in the area, Japan, it was reasoned, would bypass Australia for bigger game. The vastness of the land to be taken cast doubt on the wisdom of the course. It was thought the prize was not worth the risk.

OUTLOOK CHANGED Since the fall of Java the outlook has changed. Intensification of Japanese attacks on the adjacent island of New Guinea have offered strong indications of a purpose to move on Australia. The Japs, it is argued, would not continue to thrust southward with such violence unless the ultimate objective were Australia itself.

After making a studied canvass of the Far Eastern situation, Senator Walter F. George, past chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, takes this view of future developments. Like many others, he now believes the Japs are planning an assault on the British colonial possession in preference to an immediate venture into India or Siberia.

If the Australian assault materializes, the Georgia senator, recognized as one of the keenest analysts of war events in the upper chamber, believes it may be the most critical test Japan has yet met in the Pacific. As he sees it, the battle of Australia may prove the turning point in the Far Eastern conflict. It has these possibilities.

REAL FIGHTING MEN The fighting Australians, augmented by other British imperials and hard-hitting Americans, would be expected to put up the battle of the Japs. They have shown the caliber of fighting men they are already, both in Libya and Greece, no less than in France.

On the physical side of things, Japan, although now only 300 or 400 miles from Australia—a two-hour flight for her bombers—is spread out in her operations to a point where she is having to maintain supply lines several thousand miles from home bases.

In other words, the distance from Japan to Australia is greater than that between the United States and Europe. Even though intermediate bases have been acquired by her at Singapore and in the Dutch East Indies, this means that her sources of supply have to come the full distance—some 4,000 miles.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN Once the Japs are stopped and Allied naval and air supremacy has been established, there is little doubt about what will happen to these far-flung supply lines. The advantage, of course, is all the other way now because of the greater distances we and the British have to negotiate in bringing up reinforcements in the south Pacific, plus the fact that, for the time being, we allowed the treacherous little Nipponese to get the jump on us and start their forces in motion before we were able to strike.

One of the things prompting Senator George and other competent war observers to foresee the possibility of stopping the Japs is the complicated defense system of Australia. Distances on the continent are vast. The population is limited—7,000,000. Key centers are separated by a thousand miles and more.

It should take a lot of Japs to overrun a country that large.

SINGAPORE'S FAILURE At the time of the Nipponese assault on the Singapore bastion, a Chinese general on the staff of Chiang Kai-shek said the British naval base would be another Verdun. The Japs, he ventured, would suffer the fate of the Germans in the last World War, when they lost 500,000 men trying to take the French city of Verdun. His statement was made on the assumption all British imperial forces available in the Pacific would be thrown into the battle of Singapore.

The Pacific Verdun did not materialize. Obviously the British realized they were too late to risk the effort. The forces were diverted elsewhere. There is no longer any grounds for military secrecy as to where they are. The Japs have eliminated all speculation by the capture of other areas to which these forces might have been sent. Australia is the last major foothold. Some are in New Zealand, but the great concentration point must be Australia. Our convoys have been going there instead of the Philippines, Singapore, Java and Sumatra.

REAL BATTLEGROUND Here, then, will be the real—and last for some time, if we lose it—a battleground of the Pacific, should the Japs attack there. It is a vital objective for the Japs under any circumstances. Not only because of its danger as a base of Allied operations in counterattack, but because of its economic importance in sustaining the Tokyo war effort. Great quantities of wool, meats, hides and other war products offer a tempting prize. The Japs may consider it too much of a need, too much of a threat, to bypass it.

To Be Understood, Not Merely Praised.

United States Judge Underwood, in making his charge to the new federal grand jury, spoke words which could well be taken to heart and pondered by every American.

This was, however, one portion of the charge which should serve as a text for everyone seeking to enlarge upon the basic principles for which we fight this war.

"For more than a century and a half," said Judge Underwood, "we have been the beneficiaries of the American dream, the dream of a better life, a life of freedom and opportunity, a life of progress and achievement."

He went on to say that this dream is the foundation of our life and of our nation, and that it is the duty of every citizen to uphold and defend it.

He then said that the American dream is not a dream of material wealth, but a dream of a better life, a life of freedom and opportunity, a life of progress and achievement.

SAN DIEGO, March 13.—Art Ponsford is an Englishman, tall, slender and neatly dressed. He has been in America since 1912. He is a public-relations man.

He is one of these fellows with a perpetual enthusiasm. When you listen to him you'd better just relax and enjoy it, or his vigor will have you exhausted within half an hour.

Everything is dramatic to Art. And one of the most dramatic things in his world is tuna fishing. He has done more than anybody in south California to publicize tuna. He has even made lecture tours over the country, telling tall fish stories. He doesn't get a penny for it from the tuna industry either; he does it just because he loves it.

So I sat one day for hours listening to Art Ponsford tell tuna stories. I'll try to recreate a few of them for you, though I can't put on paper the Ponsford gesture, the Ponsford dramatic hush of the voice, Ponsford tells tuna yarns as though he were playing Shakespeare. I'll just have to give them to you straight.

Whales Seek Protection.

Pete Szalinski, skipper of the clipper Golden Gate, suddenly found his ship convoyed by four California-gray whales, two on each side of the clipper.

Knowing the sea, he sensed the reason. They had run to his ship as scared chickens run to a hen. For in a great circle around them were orcas, or killer-whales. The killers were after these helpless California-gray whales, and the grays knew it.

Pete didn't mind playing nursemaid to four innocent whales. That is, he didn't until one of them on the windward side "blew." Instantly he whole ship "blew." And they say they don't know what those whales had, but halitosis is far too mild a word for it.

Then the others "blew," and the clipper crew was gasping for breath. It was so horrible the men simply couldn't stand it. So Pete grabbed the high-powered rifle that clipper always carry, ordered full-speed ahead, and literally shot his way through the outer ring of killer whales.

And the bad-breathed grays, repulsed but not so dumb, followed the clipper and rode its wake right through the killer herd to eventual safety.

Riding A Tuna. Then there is the story of the Bering Sea halibut fisherman who drifted down to San Diego and got a job fishing for tuna before.

The very first time he threw out his line, a 300-pounder got hold of it and went away in a flash. This fellow, new to the ways of tuna, was jerked overboard. He landed astraddle, back to back, as though he were riding a horse.

The tuna carried him on a fast and splashy ride until it finally "sounded," and left him floundering in the water. They picked him up in a skiff. He refused to fish again the entire voyage. The minute they got to San Diego he headed right back for the Bering Sea.

Tuna fishermen have many shark experiences. Joe Monise, who owns the clipper Endeavor, was once fishing beside a fellow who was jerked overboard and attacked by sharks.

On a tuna clipper, the "racks" where the fishermen stand are very low, almost down to the waterline. In this case, Joe saved his fellow fisherman by reaching down and literally pulling him out of a shark's mouth by the hair of his head.

Tony Rosa, engineer of the clipper Lusitania, once slipped and half fell over the side. His clothing caught on the rail and he hung suspended against the side of the boat.

Just then a marlin lunged out of the water toward him, and the marlin's sword went right through his thigh and pinned him to the side of the boat.

The sword broke off, and the marlin disappeared. They hauled Tony up, pulled the sword out of his thigh, poured iodine into the hole, and then for hours kept sea water running through it, to prevent "fish infection." He came through in fine shape.

Denny Santos, skipper of the Sacramento, was fishing off the mainland of Mexico. Denny suddenly saw a killer whale coming in to attack the school of tuna. He grabbed his rifle, ran to the stern, and fired point blank at the whale's head.

In death agony the whale gave a tremendous leap, climbing out of the water in a great arc, right over the top of the boat. In midair it lost its momentum and came crashing down right across the boat, smashing everything.

And it took the crew three days to cut the whale into small enough pieces to be handled and thrown overboard.

While they were cutting they looked for Jonah, but they didn't find anybody.

the weak? Do you encourage racial hatreds? Do you condone those who would profit by our war emergency, whether they be industrialists, workers, agriculturalists or politicians?

If you do, brother, you are betraying the constitution and prostituting that of which you hypocritically sing when you join in the words of the national anthem, of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," or of "God Bless America."

Dudley Glass

Woman with a high sense of humor is Dr. Winifred Cullis, of London, who addressed the English Speaking Union here a few days ago.

She brightened her story about the sufferings and hardships of English people in air raids and blackouts by a dozen little stories, most of them in Cockney dialect, which I shall not attempt.

One of them was about her young niece, working with the A.R.P. After a house had been bombed she and a Cockney saloonkeeper started rescue work. There was one small hole leading into the basement. The pubkeeper was fat, the girl was slim. So she went down through the hole and together they rescued half-a-dozen victims buried under debris.

Then the building settled a little—and the girl found the hole shrunken. But she wriggled through, with difficulty, and emerged into the street wearing nothing. Dr. Cullis said, but stockings and garters and a wisp of tattered gown around her neck.

But her assistant offered no sympathy for her plight. He found a blanket, wrapped it around her shivering form and observed:

"Here, here, now. You can't stand around the streets like that, you know. Not in my block. No."

Dr. Cullis told of another rescue. A man and his wife were known to live in a certain house. It was demolished by a bomb. Rescuers found the wife, bruised and battered, but conscious. Yet no man. They asked if her husband was under the wreckage.

"Naw," she retorted, bitterly. "He went and enlisted, the blasted coward."

Dr. Cullis said there was some sense in that remark—for more civilians have been killed in air raids since Britain's war began than have been lost in active service.

Survey reveals many machine shops lying idle in Georgia—auto-mobile dealers' repair shops. Which are available for war work. Making things. Skilled mechanics are there, and lathes and drills and welding apparatus.

I can't see why repair shops should be "idle," because automobiles in use require repairs and will keep on requiring more repairs as they grow older. But Joseph W. Frazer, automobile distributor who made the survey, knows more about that than I do. In a way it will be fine to see mechanics "making things" again. I'd like to stand near a machine lathe and watch the tool cut a piece of steel into some queer shape to replace a broken bit of machinery. I did that as a boy, and was always fascinated.

My impression is that few independent machine shops have "made things" for a long, long time. Mass production of automobiles and other machinery and standardization of parts has made it easier to buy a new part than to repair an old one, much less build a brand-new one by hand.

In the days of my youth the village blacksmith—or several I knew—was a skilled mechanic. He could not only shoe a horse or shrink an iron tire onto a wagon wheel so it would stay there, but he could make almost anything you desired if it called for iron or steel. Tell him what you wanted or draw him a rough sketch and he'd turn it out—when he got 'round to it. Yet his tools were crude. A forge, an anvil, a few cold chisels, an assortment of hammers. None of this automatic machinery. That kind of blacksmith was an artist.

Atlanta still has machine shops and skilled mechanics, even outside the automotive field. I should think they'd be all set to turn out a lot of needed things which no longer can be purchased from the factory, listed as No. XWM-2, 493-B.

Story from a woman friend, picked up—the story, not the woman friend—at a bridge party. Atlanta housewife advertised for a maid. The phone tinkled. She answered.

"Is you employed?" asked the voice.

"I advertised for a maid, not a job," explained the housewife. "I jes' wanted to know," said the voice, "whether you works anywhere. I wouldn't take a job with a woman who's around the house all day."

Don't be alarmed and call up the FBI, the Federal Food Administration warns, if you find ground glass in your freshly opened can of something or other. Because it isn't ground glass. It's undissolved sugar or possibly "struvite," a substance formed by chemical action in the cans—and wholly harmless. It's been going on for years without creating panics in kitchens.

Florence Moran, of the Milledgeville Times, quotes briefest and most complete criticism of a picture she ever heard. Couple was emerging from the theater. Man said to his wife: "Well, you would come!"

Valdosta Times tells story of a motorist from Michigan who was driving a 1928 small sedan on its original tires. He claimed 50,000 miles in 14 years, with only one puncture. I'd say that Michigan man was a mighty careful driver—or something.

Bids Released On 10 Projects For Road Work

Estimated Cost on Construction Is Set at $648,037.

State highway contractors were waiting yesterday to hear the results of their bids on 10 projects, estimated to cost $648,037.

The aggregate of low bids exceeded that by about $125,000, but W. L. Shadburn, chief engineer, explained the estimates were prepared some months ago, before material prices had advanced.

Projects by counties, with the apparent low bidders, are: Bibb—528 miles of grading and concrete paving on State Route 11 to fume plant road, R. A. Bowen, Macon, $50,585.

Water Main Ditches
Dug at Milledgeville

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 13.—Work of digging ditches for new water mains from the city's standpipe to site of the new $4,500,000 naval ordnance plant is expected to be completed by the end of this week, Mayor W. L. Ritchie said today.

A large crew of laborers from the county convict camp and Milledgeville State hospital has been at work on the ditches about 10 days.

Work on the fuse plant has not yet begun, Mayor Ritchie said, but additional pieces of heavy grading equipment are being moved to the site.

Labor in State Shows Surplus And Shortage

Auto Industry Releases Many Workers, While Farms at Deficit.

Georgia now has a surplus and a shortage of labor.

This fact was revealed yesterday by the Works Project Administration following a state-wide survey.

The labor surplus exists in labor formerly employed in production activities and on the automobile assembly lines, while the agricultural sections of the state report a serious shortage of farm labor.

In the manufacturing end, 354 Georgia manufacturers have either shut down or reduced their forces, displacing 5,753 of their employees.

Conversion of many factories in the state to war production will absorb many of the skilled laborers, but other groups, the survey reveals, particularly sales forces, whose lack of technical skill will not permit their obtaining such employment, will continue to present a complex displacement problem.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

HIS MIGHTY WORKS.

Sunday's lesson, Matthew 8:23-34; Mark 4:35-41; and Luke 8:22-36, is a record of many of the mighty works of Jesus.

The golden text expresses it well in these words: "What manner of Man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey Him!" Notice, this is not a question, but an exclamation.

We are impressed with the fact that Jesus had power—power over nature, power over disease, power over evil, power over death. Aye, He has power to save, power to give eternal life, power to keep, and power to use human effort to the glory of God.

The setting of this series of mighty works of Jesus is most dramatic. After the day of healing, previously outlined in this column, Jesus crossed the sea and calmed down the storm. Entering the land of the Gadarenes, on the opposite side of the sea, He healed the two men who were possessed with devils, commanding the evil spirits to enter a herd of swine, causing the swine to leap into the sea, where they perished.

At the request of the Gadarenes Jesus returned to Capernaum, where again He healed many people of their diseases. Why would people who had been so blessed as were these demon-possessed men of the Gadarenes ask Jesus to depart from their community? Here is a most interesting situation. I believe that it deserves prayerful and careful consideration. The question emerges: Would we be tempted to ask Him to depart from our community should He perform such mighty miracles? Actually, He is performing such miracles every day, in every community where He is recognized and welcomed. Dr. John A. Broadus declared that "This miracle forms the most instructive and impressive instance of demoniacal possession found in the Gospels."

Going back for a moment to the stilling the storm-swept sea. Remember that Jesus had fallen asleep when He entered the ship. He was very weary from the arduous day of ministry. When the storm arose, His disciples awoke Him, frantically asking: "Master, carest Thou not that we perish?"

Divorce Is Granted To Mrs. Steinbeck

SALINAS, Cal., March 13.—(AP) Novelist John Steinbeck's 12-year marriage has ended in divorce, with Mrs. Carol Henning Steinbeck blaming "too many women—one in Hollywood, particularly."

Steinbeck's poetess-wife obtained an interlocutory decree here yesterday, charging mental cruelty.

Testifying briefly before Superior Judge H. G. Jorgensen, she told a story of loneliness amid the luxury paid for by the "Grapes of Wrath," Steinbeck's biggest seller.

The court approved a property settlement under which Steinbeck agreed to pay his wife $111,992.10 in cash and more than $100,000 in various bonds and shares. They were married January 12, 1930, in Los Angeles, and separated April 27, 1941.

Normandie Rubbish Fire Is Quickly Extinguished

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—A fire apparently originating in rubbish aboard the flame-ravaged $60,000,000 liner Normandie was quickly extinguished today.

Workmen engaged in salvaging the 83,423-ton craft sent an alarm that brought 100 armed coast guardsmen, a fireboat and an engine. They brought the blaze under control in 15 minutes.

The liner, seized by the government last December and converted into the naval auxiliary Lafayette, was damaged by a blaze February 9. She capsized after this fire was extinguished.

44,930 Pounds of Paper Collected in Decatur

Decatur Rotary Club collected 44,930 pounds of waste paper and cardboard Tuesday on its second monthly "waste paper day," as compared with 26,130 pounds February 2, the first collection day. Chairman Roy Freeman announced yesterday.

Another "waste paper day" will be sponsored by the club April 7 in Decatur and Druid Hills, Freeman added.

$15,000 Birthday Gift for O'Hare

CHICAGO, March 13.—(AP)—Naval Air Lieutenant Edward H. O'Hare, who became a top ace of World War II last month when he was credited with a one-day bag of six Japanese bombing planes, had a birthday today—and a $15,000 present to go with it.

A decree was entered in circuit court declaring the 28-year-old flyer to be the owner under a trust agreement of a half interest in $30,000 received from sale of a six-flat apartment building. The other half, the court found, belonged to O'Hare's father, the late Edward J. O'Hare, wealthy sportsman who was mysteriously slain on a Chicago street in 1939.

Executors of the estate were ordered to turn over $15,000 from the sale to the son, and in his absence an attorney was designated to receive it.

Panama Canal Defense Improving, Stimson Says

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP) Secretary of War Stimson returned by plane today from an inspection of Panama Canal defenses and, arriving at the White House for a cabinet meeting, told reporters that defenses of the canal were improving.

"And I expect them to improve still more," he said. "That's what I went down there for."

His inspection, required three days and he said it was a very pleasant, busy and useful trip.

How Japanese Strength Is Spread

By RALPH JORDAN.

WITH UNITED NATIONS FORCES IN AUSTRALIA, March 13. (DINA) Tokyo.

That doesn't mean they won't or can't invade Australia, but it does mean that they probably can do so only by the most desperate efforts that might leave them vulnerable at several points along their long path of conquest.

Even given an idea of Japanese military strength from sources such as the Japanese break-down of Nipponese strength in various parts of its far-flung war machine, the Japanese fighting strength is spread out in this manner:

- Five divisions doing garrison duty in Japan.
- Ten divisions in Manchukuo, the puppet state carved out of Manchuria more than a decade ago.
- Fifteen divisions in China, where they are doing the most serious fighting.
- Five divisions in the Philippines, three of them battling with no success against the heroic forces of General Douglas MacArthur.
- Five divisions in the Japanese mandated islands.
- Eight divisions in Java, Sumatra, and other islands.

Two divisions in Malaya and Burma.
Two divisions in New Guinea.
This makes a total of 64 divisions, and four more believed en route south, bring the total to 68 divisions. A reasonably-equipped grand total of 81 leaving 13 divisions for transportation wherever desired. With the four en route, that makes a total of 17 divisions available to be flung at Australia.

The Japanese divisions comprise 20,000 men of whom 18,000 are combat troops and the remainder are left to supply.

On this basis, an army of 17 divisions—340,000 men—could be assembled to make the Australian invasion attempt.

Americans Deal Jolting Blow

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—A jolting new blow by American Army heavy bombers against Japanese bases in New Guinea, possibly jumping off points for invasion of Australia, was reported today by the War Department.

In an air battle which followed the second raid in two days on the tropical island north of the Australian continent, the long range bombers, without suffering damage to themselves, shot down five

The raid was on flying fields at Salamaua and Lae, and was described as a heavy blow to the forces, which started landing this week on New Guinea.

All buildings at the enemy-held airbases were destroyed and heavy damage inflicted on runways, the communique said. In addition a direct hit was scored on a pier in the harbor of Lae.

Group of RAF Cadets Are Visitors to Atlanta

Seven Nazi Spies Given Sentences Totalling 117 Years

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—Seven convicted Nazi spies—six stoical men and a 26-year-old housewife with a cold smile on her lips—were sentenced today to federal prison to serve a total of 117 years for transmitting United States defense secrets to Germany.

Senate Group Favors Boost In Service Pay

New Schedule Would Double Salary of Buck Privates.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—A pay raise bill for hundreds of thousands of men in the armed services which would boost buck privates' pay to $42 a month from the present $21 was recommended today by the senate military affairs committee.

The decision was unanimous among the 11 senators represented at the meeting, two of whom sent their proxies.

If the bill is approved by congress, privates would get $42 a month their first year, and upon promotion to first class privates would get $48.

Corporals would be boosted from $64 to $66; sergeants from $70 to $72; staff sergeants from $82 to $86; technical sergeants, $94 to $114; and master sergeants, $136 to $138.

The only increases in base pay for commissioned officers would raise ensigns and second lieutenants from $1,500 to $1,600 a year. Substantive allowances for all commissioned officers would be increased according to rank.

Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, sponsor of the measure, estimated it would increase annual pay expenses by about $268,186,000.

"This will bring the Army up to the advantageous pay scale offered by the Navy," he declared, adding "never before has it been so necessary for men to be mechanics in the Army, and not just to be gun bearers."

The court wasted no sympathy in handing out punishment.

"I am not only punishing you for your treachery," said Judge Henry W. Goddard, "but warning others like you that such acts will not be tolerated."

Escaped Hanging.

The seven spies—two others who pleaded guilty are to be sentenced later—escaped the wartime penalty of hanging because their espionage took place before the outbreak of war, although the trial was not held until last month.

The government said the tightly knit ring had gathered and sent abroad shipping data responsible for at least 12 Allied vessels being sunk by U-boats in the Atlantic last summer and fall.

A janitor at the German consulate who took a second look at the contents of his boiler grate and a taxicab driver who unwittingly knocked down a master spy first uncovered the ring. But it was Lucy Boehmler, an 18-year-old high school girl who joined the ring "for fun" and later tattled as chief government witness, who finished it.

Most important of those sentenced was cocky Kurt Frederick Ludwig, 38, a native of Fremont, Ohio, who grew up in Germany. The No. 1 man who directed the ring's efforts as a trained Nazi spy, he was sentenced to 20 years, the maximum possible penalty.

Next was Dr. Paul T. Borchardt, 56, German citizen and former German army major, who analyzed data collected by the ring. Born a Jew, he later embraced Christianity and Mohammedanism in the interests of Germany's espionage services. He also got 20 years.

The others sentenced were: C. Froelich, 31, an army private when arrested, sold Ludwig magazines containing defense data and gathered shipping information; 20 years.

Mrs. Helen Pauline Mayer, 26, Long Island housewife, opened her house to the ring and helped obtain information and mail espionage letters; 15 years.

Karl Victor Mueller, 36, a Long Island machinist, the ring's chauffeur; helped Ludwig collect some of the defense data; 15 years.

IN BATTLE REGALIA—Atlantans gazed in wonderment at these tin-helmeted soldiers, garbed in near full battle regalia, as they strode up and down Peachtree street yesterday before noon, to limber joints made stiff by a long train ride. The doughboys said only they were "ordered to wear them" in explaining why they had donned the tin hat instead of the more comfortable dress or overseas cap. Here they are shown getting "refreshments on the house" at the Terminal Station USO lounge.

OPA Opposes Increases in Freight Rates

Subsidies to Railroads Running Into Red Suggested.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—Concerned over the possible effect on price structures, the Office of Price Administration undertook today to head off any increase in railroad freight rates on 10 groups of commodities.

At the same time, an official indicated there was considerable sentiment in the agency that general increases of 6 per cent on industrial freight and 3 per cent on farm products, recently approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, should be shelved and, if necessary, government subsidies paid to railroads running into the red because of rising operating costs.

Speaking before the railroad committee of 21 in New York, Dexter M. Keezer, assistant price administrator, said OPA might ask later for revocation of the entire rate increase. He mentioned government subsidy of financially weak carriers as an alternative. The committee is made up of railroad traffic officers designated by the lines to work with the ICC on rate matters.

The railroads based their plea to the ICC for higher rates chiefly on the fact that an arbitration board had approved wage increases for railroad employees amounting to about $300,000,000 a year.

It was estimated that, on the basis on 1941 business, the increases approved would bring in $203,000,000 and that additional business in 1942 might raise this to $225,000,000. The carriers already have put into effect a 10 per cent increase in passenger fares expected to yield $46,000,000 to $50,000,000 annually.

10 Per Cent Increase Given Pullman Rates

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized the Pullman company today to increase its rates, fares, and charges by 10 per cent. The company was authorized to put the increase into effect within 10 days after filing the necessary tariffs with the commission.

On the basis of 1941 business it was estimated the increase would produce additional gross revenue of $6,171,186, of which $2,979,517 would go to railroads under operating contracts and $989,417 for additional income taxes, leaving the company a net increase of $2,202,252.

British, Chinese Troops Unite Above Rangoon

Oriental Allies Are Reported To Be Excellent Soldiers.

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—British and Chinese troops stood in common line tonight some 80 miles above Rangoon for the defense of central Burma and for flank protection of the approaches to India.

First actual contact between the field armies of British Lieutenant General H. R. L. G. Alexander, last man to leave Dunkirk, and of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was made on the Toun-goo highway, halfway between Pegu and Nyaunglebin. These towns are 45 miles apart on the Rangoon-Mandalay railway.

Some 60 miles westward other British troops withdrawn from desolate Rangoon and lower Burma had established a stabilized front on the Prom road near Tharawaddy.

The Chinese, who have been stationed in the Shan states eastward to the upper Thailand frontier but who have seen very little action during the Burma campaign, were said by a London military commentator to be excellent troops, well equipped with small arms but lacking in artillery and other heavy equipment.

State 4-H Club Council to Hold June Meeting

Session To Be Held at Wesleyan College, Macon, June 15-20.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., March 13.—The annual conference of the State 4-H Club Council will be held June 15-20 instead of the regular meeting dates in August, W. A. Sutton Jr., state 4-H leader, announces.

Sutton said the conference will convene at Wesleyan College near Macon, the change from Athens being necessary on account of limited housing space at the University of Georgia during this summer.

Four bona fide 4-H Club members—two girls and two boys—are eligible to attend from each county. However, all delegates must have had at least three years of club work, including the current year, and must be 15 years of age or older. In addition, Sutton said delegates to the 1942 meeting must not have attended the annual club conference in previous years.

The state leader pointed out that Master 4-H Club members will be allowed to attend full time if they are active 4-H Club members in 1942. They will not count against the county quotas of two boys and two girls.

All delegates to the conference must wear national 4-H Club uniforms, it was stated.

Husband Pleads Guilty To Postal Violation

A husband who admitted obtaining by ruse from the post office a letter written by his wife to a masculine acquaintance after she had received a first divorce verdict in superior court here, entered a plea of guilty yesterday in federal district court.

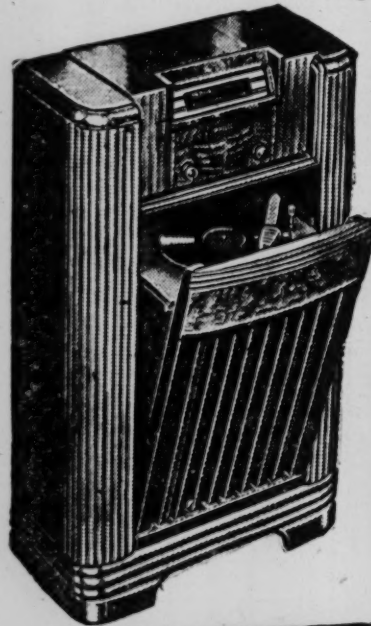

Judge E. Marvin Underwood reserved sentence until the record of the defendant, T. G. Smithwick, could be investigated. The letter was obtained from clerks at the old postoffice last December 16.

Miss Lewis Becomes Bride Of Mr. Viser in Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La., March 13.—The marriage of Miss Sara Pope Lewis and Harry Lampton Viser Jr. took place here on February 26 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Viser, parents of the bride.

The afternoon ceremony was performed at 5:30 o'clock by Dr. Wade H. Boggs, pastor of First Presbyterian church. Mrs. Bert Dueringer rendered the musical program.

White snapdragons, carnations and candy tuff, and garlands of ferns beautified the mantel in the living room, where the ceremony was performed. Floor baskets held graceful arrangements of white gladioli, stock and snapdragons. Wrought iron candelabra held white tapers and white flowers decorated the piano.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Ralph Emerson Lewis, of Atlanta and Newnam, Ga. She was lovely in a Milgrim costume suit of sheer Fortman wool in bride's blue. The dress, which was topped with a long fitted coat, featured a square neckline and tiny tucks on the waist. Her accessories were in a petunia shade and her only ornament was the gift of the bridegroom, an antique hand-tinted ivory medallion of his great-grandfather. She wore orchids and frezias and H. L. Viser was best man for his son.

Mrs. Lewis, mother of the bride, was gowned in a suit of navy blue with rose accessories and her corsage was of variegated camellias and bouvardia. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Viser, was attired in a smart black tulle tailleur and white accessories and her flowers were red roses.

The dining table was overlaid with a hand-made cloth made by the bridegroom's maternal grandmother. A low arrangement of white sweetpeas and frezias formed the central decor, and the embossed wedding confection was topped by a cluster of similar blossoms. A garland of smilax outlined the centerpiece and extended to either end of the table. The silver service was presided over by Mrs. J. C. Allen.

Upon their return from their wedding trip, the bride and groom will reside in Shreveport.

Girl Sacrifices Her Future By Dating a Married Man

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

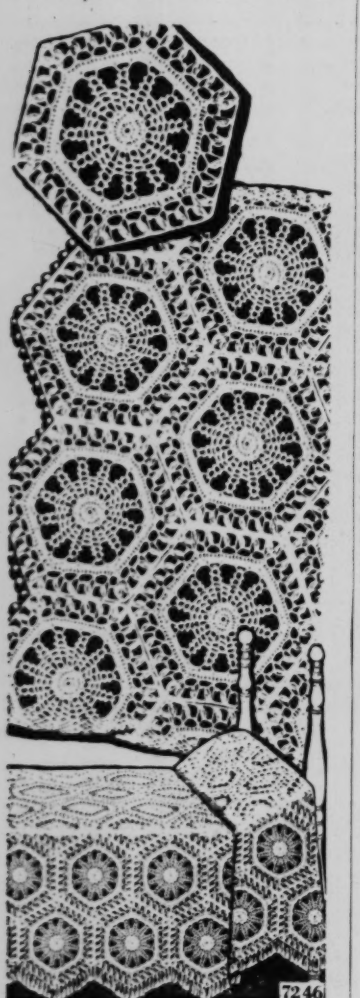

I am on the spot. I love a man who is married and has three children. He still lives with his wife, but dates other girls. He has told me he does not love her, but I cannot tell whether that is true or not. He tells me he loves me better than anyone he has ever met and I am deeply in love with him. Do you think it would be the right thing for him to get a divorce? He has asked me to leave with him many times, but I would rather that he be free. His wife will not go out with him to social affairs where he wants to go, but wants him to stay at home with her all the time. My mother does not approve of my going with him. What can I do to prove to her that we are deeply in love. HEARTBROKEN.

As usual mother is right in not approving of this affair and the sooner you take her advice about this man the better it will be. When a man is married, and asks another woman to run away with him, you can mark him down at once as an unfaithful wretch. If he treats his wife this way to whom he is bound by the ties of matrimony, why do you think that he will stick by you, who have no hold upon him at all? The fact that he dates other girls, too, should be reason enough to make you realize that he can not be faithful to any one woman.

As for his getting a divorce, that of course, is something for him to decide, and my guess is that he will not. If he should, he would have to support his ex-wife and the three children as well as the new wife. It would be quite a heavy load. A great many men make a mistake in their marriages, and get the wrong mate, but in the case of this man I think that you can tell by his actions now just what type he is and will continue to be. If he really loved you he would not ask you to run away with him before he got his divorce. If he really loved you he would offer you marriage. Always remember that a man respects a woman he asks to marry him, and there is not much to a proposal to run away from his wife. If he is serious about you and wants to marry you, he will get a divorce. Until then, you better go slow with him, or not at all would be better.

Columbia Puts One Over in Getting Rights to Stage Hit, "Angel Street"

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—(INS)—Is Hollywood's face red? The biggest stage hit in New York is "Angel Street" and there isn't a producer who wouldn't give a pretty penny to get the movie rights. Well, along comes Columbia and quietly buys the American film rights to a little film called "Gaslight," made in London. Maybe you're asking what bearing this has on the case. Just this—"Angel Street" and "Gaslight" are one and the same. In fact, "Angel Street" was originally called "Gaslight."

So the Hollywood producers are stymied in making an American movie of "Angel Street" unless, of course, they should care to buy the British movie from Columbia. Neat little coup, I call it, for Harry Cohn and the boys. As it stands now "Gaslight," starring Diana Wynyard and Anton Walbrook, will be released in this country unless a deal is made to "kill it" from a rival producer bent on producing "Angel Street." 'Tis said Geraldine Fitzgerald is one of the lucky ones who owns stock in the gold mine stage play.

We are hearing a lot about "Tomorrow Never Comes," the story Frank Capra was to make before he went to work for Uncle Sam. Arnold Pressburger, who bought the rights, has ambitious plans to film it with one of our important stars. Cary Grant read the story and was intrigued, but he has too many stories ahead. But Joel McCrea, who refused the Veronica Lake assignment, "I Married a Witch," is very hot at the moment and may accept the Pressburger offer before this is printed.

Anna Sten, the Russian actress who cost with Goldwyn over a million dollars publicizing her in her first American movie, is coming back to pictures. Her husband, and associate producer in all of her movies, Dr. Eugene Frenke, has bought the American rights to "Girl from Leningrad," which he made in Russia some years back. He will star Anna and make the picture as soon as he gets a release. With everything Russian so popular these days this may be a very good time to bring La Sten back.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RUMORS: Mrs. Colin Kelly, widow of the Philippine hero, was guest of Al Hall at Columbia; Miriam Hopkins' time is taken up with Gene Solo; Clifford Odets is about to put his name on a Warner contract; Cary Grant will soon become an American citizen; Greta Garbo and the boy friend, Gaylor Hauser, have returned from their eastern jaunt; Cesar Romero, coaching his old friend, Joan Crawford, in the jitterbug routine she does in "He Kissed the Bride"; Ida Lupino, flu victim, off the set of "The Hard Way" for a few days; reports are Lin Howard of the "Seabiscuit" Howards, and his ex-wife are having trouble over custody of their children; Charles Nordhoff is in town for the preview of "The Turtles of Tahiti," the Charles Laughton-RKO movie; air corps basic flying school at Minton field, Bakersfield, sends word that Lana Turner is their favorite blackout girl. That's all today. See you tomorrow! But Michael Harvey, of New York, says: "Buy a bond is the American way of defending tomorrow today."

Pola Negri, slimmed down to 115 pounds and looking as young as she did 15 years ago, is not going to test for Pilar. "I don't want to be a middle-aged woman," she said. "Even in 'For Whom the Bell Tolls.' If I could be young in the beginning and grow old as Claudette Colbert did in 'Remember the Day,' that would be a different thing, but I don't want to stamp myself as a character woman in my American comeback movie."

I had luncheon with Pola and she laughed when I asked her if she had been one of Hitler's girl friends, as rumor said. "I have been in my estate at Cap Ferrat milking cows, working in the garden and feeding chickens. My mother is there now with my aunt and uncle. Thank goodness, I was able to get them out of Poland. The stories that I was Hitler's girl friend are ridiculous. I made a picture in Germany called 'Marzburka' before the war. I needed the job and when Arnold Pressburger offered it to me I took it. I left immediately and went to France."

Pola's estate is next to that of Maurice Chevalier and she said he is still playing on the stage in Paris with his new wife. "Cap Ferrat," said Pola, "is in unoccupied France and I haven't been in Paris since the Germans marched in. I don't want to talk politics. I want a job in America."

Planning A Wartime Wedding

Your wedding can be beautiful in wartime. Proper planning and traditional bridal etiquette—these make a wedding lovely and these you can have, even if he is in the service and time is short.

The first thing, the bride budgets her family's expenses; for a large church wedding they include invitations, fees at the church (for music and the sexton's services), decorations and refreshments.

The groom's expenses are the license and ring, the clergyman's fee and usually the bride's bouquet.

How much the bride's expenses will be depends, of course, on the size of the wedding and the family purse. If that is slim—but still you dream of marrying in a formal bridal gown and cloud-like veil—why not do it? Both reception and wedding may be small yet formal; only if you are dressing formally, others must too.

Your father wears a cutaway if the wedding is in the daytime, white tie and tails if at night, and so must the groom if he's not in uniform. But if you dress informally, so can they—in business clothes.

Does the groom bring in uniform or in civilian clothes? The new edition of our 40-page book, on wedding, prepared by The Constitution, tells military etiquette for weddings, and answers hundreds of questions about budgeting, dress and etiquette for formal, informal, second and double weddings. Also explains etiquette for guests and attendants at ceremony and reception.

Exercises Designed For a Small Apartment

By Ida Jean Kain.

Modern apartments are so streamlined today that young women are complaining they haven't room to kick and are demanding more compact calisthenics. To meet this demand, I have worked out a set of exercises that don't require much more space than a bandbox and will give you a figure like Dolores Del Rio's.

If you can manage to clear a space six feet by four, you can do these:

Position: Lie on back on floor, arms stretched straight up on floor overhead, legs straight down.

Movement: Stretch right leg over the left, and, at the same time, push up on floor with right arm. That gives your entire right side a thorough diagonal stretch. Relax and stretch the other side. Keep it up, very leisurely, for half a dozen counts.

Position: Still on back, arms stretched up on floor, left knee flexed and foot on floor, other leg straight down.

Movement: Flex right knee to chest and pull stomach muscles up and in. Return to position and repeat five times, then switch to other knee.

Position: The same as in exercise immediately above.

Movement: This time swing the straight leg up to a right angle with the trunk. Lower and repeat six times. Then flex this knee and place foot on floor and have the other leg straight. Repeat six times.

Position: The same.

Movement: Swing straight leg and arm simultaneously and touch fingers to toes. Swing arm and leg on same side and keep elbow and knee straight.

Position: Flop over face downward on the floor, with head resting on folded arms, legs straight down.

Movement: Tense the gluteus maximus muscles on the back of the hips and slowly raise right leg high in air. Hold and lower. Continue for 10 counts with right leg, then 10 with the left. Slowly increase your daily stint until you are doing 50 counts for both legs.

Position: Lying on back on floor, arms flexed so you can push with your hands.

Movement: Roll over on one side, back across the hips, and over on the other side.

There's not much action in the exercises given above. But if you will do them accurately they will firm the midriff, slim the waist, streamline the hips and put you in good shape generally.

By Dr. William Brady.

A suggestion I believe may be helpful to thousands of adults past 35 or 40, who find themselves feeling

Wildcats Face Illinois Quint In First Round

Eastern Collegiate Title at Stake in Meet Next Week.

NEW ORLEANS, March 13.—(AP) Dartmouth will meet Pennsylvania State and Illinois plays Kentucky in the opening round of the National Collegiate Athletic Association playoff for the eastern basketball championship at Tulane University here March 20. The winners of the two games will meet the next night, March 21, to decide the team which plays the winner of the western tournament for the national championship at Kansas City a week later. Each team is studied with stars and is champion of its section.

Call in The Game
BY JACK TROY

Notable Speech ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 13.—Not all baseball players can talk three or four languages. Indeed, many do well to master one, the English. But generally the academic standard of the game's participants has been raised in the last dozen years or so.

Club rosters are being filled more and more by college men. But not much publicity is given to the matter and, in some quarters, baseball players still are regarded as a rather rough, uncouth and uncultured lot. A group of two-fisted, tobacco-chewing rowdies.

But, if you please, the modern trend is better exemplified by Professor Moe Berg, late of the Boston Red Sox and now a diplomat in the service of his country.

It seems to me baseball's publicists missed the boat in not getting more recognition for a recent address to the Japanese people in Japanese by Moe Berg, a bullpen catcher.

Berg spoke over short-wave radio, and it was no publicity stunt. He had visited Japan, spent much time with the people. He learned their language and their customs. It is not known, of course, whether he was heard by any Japanese. But the spirit and the substance of the talk is compelling.

'Outraged Us' Berg, advising the people to repudiate the war lords who led them into savage conflict with the United States, declared: "I am able to talk to you in your own language because I studied it in order to know you better. I lived among you and traveled with intimate Japanese friends to see your historic sites and appreciate your cultural history."

"I have admired the exquisite delicacy of your art, the woodprints of Hokusai, Toyokuni and Hiroshige. I stood on the bridge, sacred to you, in Kyoto, where Ushiwakamatsu fought his famous battle. I journeyed to and admired the temples of Nikko and the Falls of Kegon No Taki."

"I know your glorious history, about your Samurai, the Cult of Bushido, your love of the Confucian classics. I was impressed by your hospitality and customs. All these things I still admire. But you betrayed your friends. You made an attack without warning on Pearl Harbor while your ambassadors, Nomura and Kurusu, were carrying out diplomatic conversations with us. You have lost face and are committing national Seppuku."

"We thought that you played and would fight according to accepted rules. But you have outraged us and every other nation in the world with the exception of two—two that are tainted with blood—Germany and Italy. They welcome you as friends."

"Your leaders have betrayed you. They have misinterpreted democratic freedom and debate for weakness. The Matsukas, your Jingist army and navy officers and your Axis partners, Hitler and Mussolini, have misjudged us—have misled you."

"Believe me when I tell you that you cannot win this war. I am speaking to you as a friend of the Japanese people, and I tell you to take the reins now."

It is probable that not a regular among the American diplomats could have delivered such a speech to the Japanese in their own language. But Berg could address similar pleas to the people of Germany and Italy, if he chose.

Point of View A moot point, in connection with the speech, recently was made by John Kieran, sports editor of The N. Y. Times, and Information Please intellectual.

Kieran wrote: "Now, if some campus dignitary, celebrated scientist or famous government official had delivered a speech like that, it would have been hailed as a masterly accomplishment of signal importance by a man of amazing ability."

"But it was delivered by a veteran ballplayer and apparently accepted in this country as simply an interesting stunt by an odd fellow from the field of sports. On thinking it over, that verdict isn't good enough. Not nearly!"

On thinking it over, it is quite a testimonial to baseball. For, while the game doesn't claim any William Lyon Phelps, it does today show a definite intellectual and diplomatic upswing. Thanks, among others, to Professor Moe Berg, former big league catcher and coach and late head, as Mr. Kieran pointed out, of the Modern Language Department of the Boston Red Sox bullpen.

And recently, referring back to Billy Phelps, the Yale professor acclaimed baseball as the sport where one gets the most action for the money. He pointed out that baseball decisions are made promptly—and finally—and one doesn't have to wait for results of photo finishes or movies to tell whether the favorite won or lost.

Tigers Sell 'Holdout' Sullivan To Brooklyn Club for Cash

LAKELAND, Fla., March 13.—The Detroit Tigers today reduced their holdouts to four by sending Catcher Billy Sullivan to the Brooklyn Dodgers for an undisclosed amount of cash. General Manager Jack Zeller, of the Tigers, completed the transaction with Larry MacPhail, of the Dodgers, by telephone.

At the same time the Tigers called up Al Unser, veteran minor league receiver, from their Beaumont farm club, of the Texas League, to replace Sullivan behind George (Birdie) Tebbetts and Dixie Parsons, other catchers in camp.

Sullivan, whose salary reportedly was halved from the 1941 figure of the $12,000, failed to report this spring, but remained at his home at Sarasota. The 31-year-old Chicagoan, whose father and namesake once made baseball history with the White Sox, came to the Tigers in 1940 from the St. Louis Browns in exchange for Pitcher George Coffman and shared in Detroit's pennant victory.

He had seen previous service with Chicago and Cleveland in the American League and Cincinnati in the National League.

SUGAR BOWL HEAD. NEW ORLEANS, March 13.—(AP) Joseph B. David last night was elected president of the Midwinter Sports Association, sponsor of the annual Sugar Bowl football game here.

FAVORED BACKFIELD—Here is the starting backfield for the favored "Red" team in today's "G" Day football game at the University of Georgia. Reason the Red team is favored over the "Whites" is, of course, the presence of All-American Frank Sinkwich in the lineup. Left to right are Gus Letchas, wingback; Joe Polak, blocking back; Sinkwich (with ball), and Jim Todd, fullback. A real scrap is forecast.

Suggs, Kirby Both Beaten in Golf Meet

Louise Bows to Tainter, 2 Up; Dot Loses to Garman, 1 Up.

By DOROTHY KIRBY. ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 13.—I had always thought Friday the 13th was a lucky day for me, but I take it all back after today. I shot a 78 against Mary Jane Garman this morning to her 81, but I lost one up on the 18th green in the semi-finals of the Florida East Coast tourney.

I was two up at the fifth hole, going out in a 37 to Mary Jane's 41, and I also won the 10th to be 3 up.

My downfall started at the 11th, when Mary Jane made a beautiful pitch shot and got a four to my five. We halved the 12th in fives and I lost the 13th to a par three and was one up.

We halved the 14th when my putt hit the cup and came out. I lost the 15th to a par five when I overhit the green. Mary Jane made a birdie two on 16 to go one up. I won the 17th with a par four, so we were even and one to go.

I hit a pretty good shot to get on the green in two and Mary Jane sliced her second, but made a beautiful chip shot to within three feet of the hole.

I was short on my first putt and missed the putt for a four, so the match went to Mary Jane. I always seem to three-putt at the wrong time.

In the other match Georgia Tainter, marching toward her fifth title of the season, came through again to win from Louise Suggs by 2 up. The match went back and forth, Tainter being one up at nine, having a 40 to Louise's 46. Coming in Tainter shot a 39 for a 79 to Louise's 40 for an 80.

So it was close all the way. Tomorrow for the finals will be Tainter and Garman for 18 holes. After this event Georgia Tainter is going to take a much needed rest and not go to Pinehurst, but will come to August. Later to play.

The Atlanta delegation is heading for Pinehurst this afternoon. The tournament there starts Monday.

Y Badminton Set March 21 At Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 13.—Badminton players from 12 Georgia cities have received entry blanks for the Young Men's Christian Association state badminton tournament which will be held here March 21.

Deadline for entries in the one-day tournament has been set for 6 p. m. March 17, and by that time Chairman Bill Owen expects to have lined up a representative slate of the Georgia stars.

The tournament will start at noon in the large Savannah High school gymnasium, which has a high ceiling and enough room for three matches to be in progress at the same time.

Trophies will be presented to the winners of the women's and men's singles and doubles and to those winning the mixed doubles. Chairman Owen said the honor system will be used during the tournament, thus eliminating the need of officials.

Local members of the Savannah - Chatham County Physical Fitness Committee is co-operating with the tournament officials. No admission will be charged.

Albany was host to the 1941 tournament.

Entry blanks have been mailed to Atlanta, Athens, Augusta, Albany, Macon, Moultrie, Columbus, Waycross and Thomasville.

Bear Bryant Now Lieutenant in Navy

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP) The Navy announced today that Paul (Bear) Bryant, line coach at Vanderbilt University, would be commissioned a lieutenant (junior grade) in the Naval Reserve and would serve as a coach in the pilot training physical fitness program. First he will attend an indoctrination course at the Naval Academy. The Navy did not say where he would be stationed.

Howard Long Deferred; Returns To Aid Crackers

Richards Sees Nichoff's Smokies as Pennant Threat; Army Calls Rosenstein.

By JACK TROY. Sports Editor.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 13.—Friday 13th was a lucky day for the Crackers. Howard Long, of Gastonia, N. C., one of the more promising left-handed pitchers, returned to camp with word that he had been deferred by Army officials.

Long impressed Paul Richards with his poise and ability in his first week of practice and then he was called away apparently to be inducted. Length of his deferment is not known.

BLUEBIRDS WIN. The Bluebirds defeated the regulars, 5 to 4, in a 12-inning game today. A short workout is scheduled for Saturday and then Sunday the exhibition schedule gets under way.

Charlie Glock and Earle Browne won't make the trip to Palatka for the Birmingham game but will remain here for extensive batting practice.

Shortstop Jim Cox is troubled with a sore arm but will start the exhibition schedule.

Milton Rosenstein, right-handed pitcher who starred last year with Miami Beach, received his Army papers today and has reported to Camp Blanding. The Crackers hope to make good use of him after the war.

SMOKIES A THREAT. Knoxville is seen as a definite first-division threat by Paul Richards and New Orleans may make a serious bid for the Southern League pennant. Generally, it looks like an interesting race.

Willie Duke and Skeeter Sealz, two of Knoxville's hopefuls, visited the Cracker camp Friday on their way to Miami for a visit. They'll join the Smokies later at Tallahassee.

Bert Nichoff has much better prospects at Knoxville than at Little Rock, where he didn't have a chance. Duke is one of the outfielders and Lou Fette, ex-Boston Brave, and Crip Polli, two of the pitchers. The veteran Buddy Lewis will catch. He is one of the league's best.

New Orleans has the same infield as last year, plus improved pitching and a stronger outfield. Prospects are very bright for Pat

WILLIE DUKE Swatsmith for Smokies.

Ankenman, new Pel manager. Richards said he didn't have much of a line on Nashville, "but don't worry about Larry Gilbert not having it. He'll go out and buy what he needs. Count on the Vols to be in the race," he said.

The Crackers are in no position to lead from start to finish as they did last year. They are not set as they were a year ago. Too much depends this time on what the rookies do. But it will be an interesting team and could develop into a real winner.

Mrs. Vane Takes Belleair Event

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 13.—(AP) Mrs. Glenna Collet Vane, of Merion, Pa., won the annual Belleair Women's Golf Tournament today, defeating Mrs. Thomas P. Gallatin, Tampa, 7 and 6.

Mrs. Vane won the first seven holes. Although wild off the tees, she played excellent recovery shots, including holing out of a trap on No. 4 for a birdie. She had a 38 medal score on the first nine.

Jockey Arcaro Is Injured in 4-Horse Spill

Royal Man, 5-Year-Old, Snaps Leg and Is Destroyed.

MIAMI, March 13.—(AP)—Friday, the 13th, landed a load of its hard luck on Tropical park's feature race today, leaving Eddie Arcaro with a bruised and skinned arm, two other jockeys with minor injuries, and a ranking handicap horse dead, the result of a disastrous four-horse spill.

The spectacular accident happened during the running of the Indian River Handicap, just as the field was swinging into the stretch turn. The four horses piled up in a heap, leaving only five to finish the mile-and-a-half trip, which Sir Marlboro, an 8-1 outsider, won by two lengths.

Arcaro, the Kentucky riding wizard, who has been mixing good luck with a heaping portion of bad the last seven months, was aboard the favorite, Boston Man, from Mrs. H. T. Archibald's barn. He was forcing Sir Marlboro's pace all the way down the backstretch, when suddenly he seemed to falter. He dropped back, then fell.

Harold S. Clark's Royal Man, close behind, tripped next, carrying Nick Wall, the little Boston rider, down. Then Wexler and Shagin's Red Dock and George Brooks' Cadmium stumbled onto the pile.

Billie Thompson, another Kentuckian, was riding Cadmium, and suffered a wrenched back. Wall came out with a sore arm. Only Sterling Young, New Orleans-born buster, was unscathed.

Three of the horses were able to get up. The fourth, five-year-old Royal Man, owned by a Miami business man and winner of $21,035 last year, had a broken leg and was destroyed.

Tech's Jim Hearn Is Signed by Cards

JIMMY HEARN, Georgia Tech baseball and basketball star, has been assigned to the Houston club of the Texas league for spring training after signing with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Talented Soph To Run Behind Stronger Line

Letchas, Polak and Todd To Be Paired With Fireball Frankie.

By F. M. WILLIAMS. ATHENS, Ga., March 13.—Fancy backs, probably as fine a collection as can be found in any gridiron camp in the south, will be very much in the limelight Saturday afternoon when picked squads from the Georgia Bulldog roster square off in the annual G-Day game.

Action starts at 3 o'clock and will be the highlight of an all-day program sponsored by the "G" Club and the Georgia Boosters' Club. A dance at Woodruff Hall Saturday night will be the outstanding social activity.

With the brilliant Frankie Sinkwich heading the list, Georgia can offer two complete backfields and two or three reserves that would cheer the soul of any coach in the country.

Teamed with Sinkwich as starting backs for Coach Spec Towns' Red team are Jim Todd, a veteran triple-threat at fullback; Joe Polak, a second-year varsity man, blocking back, and promising Gus Letchas, declared ineligible by the Southeastern Conference last season, who will be at wingback.

GREAT PROSPECT. Coach Quinton Lumpkin, who will handle the "Whites," will open with the star of last year's freshman team and one of the greatest prospects Georgia ever had, Charlie Trippi at fullback.

Jerry Nunnally, described as the most improved man on the squad, wingback; Walter Maguire, another reserve from last year's team, blocking back, and rugged Mel Bray at fullback.

That backfield has three Athens boys as starters, Nunnally, Maguire and Bray.

The rise of Nunnally is the best and most unexpected news to hit Georgia's camp in years. The youngster was fourth string at the start of last season, was generally regarded as a third-stringer at the close of the season, and is now rated on a par with Letchas, maybe better.

DEFENSIVE MAN. Andy Dudish, the other wingback, since Dade has been shifted to end, is a specialist—a demon defensive man—and is used almost exclusively for that purpose.

Jerry's improvement, more than anything else, brought about the shift of Davis.

Davis and Farrar Vickery, a freshman tailback who has been shifted to end, will probably open at the flank positions for the Whites.

Atlanta Beaten In Sebring Meet

SEBRING, Fla., March 13.—(AP) Raleigh W. Lee, Columbus, Ohio, winner of the 1935 and 1940 titles, and H. B. Lovell, Charlestown, Mass., will meet tomorrow in the finals of the eighth annual midwinter tourney for amateur senior golfers.

Lee entered the finals today by defeating F. W. Sampson, Atlanta, Ga., 1 up, and Lovell advanced by disposing of George Kibler, Columbus, Ohio, 4 and 3.

Waltz in swintime . . . A prize animal shot by Ylla. Luck alone didn't produce this great photo. A perfect combination of many things—skill, experience, timing—was responsible. And that's just what it takes to make Hiram Walker's DeLuxe a great bourbon. Daladier Blames Army Leaders for Lack of Preparation

RIOM, Unoccupied France, March 13.—(AP)—Edouard Daladier, premier under whom France went to war, charged with a flash of his old-time fire today at his "war guilt" trial that the leaders of the French army were responsible for not arming the nation in the years of Adolf Hitler's feverish and secret mobilization of Germany, 1934 and 1935.

J. Johnson's Estate To Wife, Daughters

The will of Joseph Johnson, filed in the Fulton county ordinary's office, left his home at 2214 Peachtree road and other assets to his wife and daughters and contained the epitaph to be placed on his tombstone. The epitaph reads: "Joseph Johnson, of Atlanta, Ga., formerly of the city of New York, founder of the Order of Acorns, fire commissioner under Mayor Gaynor, director of publicity for the American Red Cross during the World War, commissioner of public works of Manhattan in the administration of Mayor Walker, planner of New York's civic center, and date and place of birth."

Daladier intervened for Pierre Jacomet, fellow-defendant and former administrator of French war production, and Jacomet won dismissal of one of the charges against him, one of "incompetence in industrial mobilization."

Presiding Judge Pierre Caous announced that the charge, one of several against Jacomet, had been abandoned after Jacomet testified yesterday that national defense authorities had even refused to spend credits granted them by parliament for forts, guns and tanks.

Daladier said administrative and orance branches of the French army were at fault for not speeding French war production in 1934 and 1935 before Leon Blum became Popular Front premier the following year.

"The situation was lamentable in 1934 when they (army officials) ordered altogether seven tanks at the time Germany was turning them out by mass production," he said.

"The situation was lamentable in 1935 when there were no anti-tank guns provided for our fortifications."

Daladier's intervention climaxed two days of testimony by Jacomet, who described himself as a sort of supervisor for all nationalized arms factories, although he admitted he had only limited administrative responsibility.

The principal charge against Jacomet is that he hid "by silence and inexactitudes even in December, 1939, that France was not ready morally and materially in the military, political and economic domains."

Addressing the feminine portion of his audience, Talmadge said, "It would be worthwhile for all those beautiful girls to get some tan in their cheeks by outside work."

The Governor, telling of his action to release "good convicts" from farm work, said he had freed "a great number" of convicts to farms and the Army, but emphasized none of the paroled or pardoned men was working on his farm or the farm of any member of the State Board of Pardons and Pardon.

NAM Tax Plan Hotly Assailed By Tennessean On Peachtree

Cooper Says Program Would Soak Small Corporations.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers was accused by a House Ways and Means committee today of sponsoring a program which would reduce rather than increase the new taxes some corporations would be walled upon to pay to help finance the cost of the war.

Representative Cooper, Democrat, Tennessee, second ranking member, made the accusation in an acrimonious exchange with J. Cheever Cowdin who yesterday gave the committee the association's overall program of raising $7,600,000,000, with all corporations to pay $1,500,000,000 of that total.

"You soak the smaller (corporations) still more and let the big ones out," Cooper told Cowdin. Cowdin agreed that in a small percentage of cases his program would not impose heavier taxes in the cases of companies which make between 100 per cent and 200 per cent of their base credit, based on pre-war income.

He contended, however, that the association's overall corporate tax recommendations, for large companies as well as small ones, would yield $1,500,000,000 more from that source than under present law.

Cooper said that under Cowdin's program, a company with $100,000,000 net income would pay $40,000,000 in taxes, while under present law the total tax bill would be $47,528,000.

Baptists Open School Rooms At Oglethorpe

70th Anniversary Celebrated as Church Unit Is Opened.

By MRS. J. M. MOORE. OGLETHORPE, Ga., March 13. The Sunday school of the Oglethorpe Baptist church, organized in March, 1872, celebrated its 70th anniversary last Sunday, with the opening of the new Sunday school rooms, this event marking the culmination of plans begun 25 years ago.

The building committee was composed of C. A. Allison, Buford Johnson, Dr. J. A. Taylor, W. T. Jolly, Will Martin and W. H. Ansley, with Dan Witt as contractor.

A sermon by the Rev. Joe Raburn, pastor of the Baptist church of Milledgeville, was a feature of the opening services.

The history of the Oglethorpe Baptist church dates from November 1, 1847, when 16 pioneers, under the leadership of the Rev. Isaac Leavours and the Rev. James Perryman, who composed the presbytery, organized at Hamburg, one of Macon county's vanished towns, a Baptist church. This church extended an arm to the growing town of Oglethorpe which was destined to absorb the mother church by November, 1866.

The pastor of the Oglethorpe church at that time was the Rev. B. L. Ross, who was succeeded by the Rev. W. H. Rice, professor of natural sciences in Houston Female College.

Two buildings have housed the Oglethorpe church, one built in 1867 on Randolph street, and the present structure erected in 1895, during the pastorate of the Rev. W. L. Cutts, the longest pastorate in the history of the church. Records of the church show that the Rev. Henry Camp was serving as pastor at the beginning of the War Between the States and that the Rev. N. A. Hornady was the pastor at the close of the war.

Other well-known ministers who have served the church were the Rev. C. F. Clark, upon whom Mercer University conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity; the Rev. H. T. Brookshire, later vice president of the Georgia Baptist Convention and the Reverends H. F. Jelks, J. W. Snelson, Ray Smith, W. M. Burns and others.

The church is now in a flourishing condition under the leadership of the Rev. Hoyt G. Farr and has 130 members.

Among the superintendents of the Sunday school during the years that are past were Will Cook, A. H. Perry, E. W. Shealy, C. A. Allison, B. F. Martin, A. L. Cobb, J. E. Ansley, John F. Williams and McKenzie Perry. The present superintendent is W. T. Jolly.

Windward Isle Attacked; Two Ships Are Hit

Outposts of U. S. Caribbean Defenses Located on Island.

CARIBBEAN, St. Lucia Island, March 13.—(AP)—An enemy submarine damaged two ships here Monday night in an attack upon this Windward island, on which outposts of United States Caribbean defenses are located.

An official British announcement, withheld until today, said that neither ship was sunk and that casualties were slight.

A German communique said yesterday that two ships were sunk at the quay in the inner harbor of Castries and that a third was sunk in waters around the island.

The United States bases, part of the defense screen thrown about the Panama Canal, are located in another part of the island. St. Lucia is the northernmost of the Windward islands, some 20 miles south of the Vichy-ruled French island of Martinique.

The U-boat attack was the first on British territory in this area since the war's start, but two ships were damaged off British-owned Trinidad, 200 miles south of here, on February 18, apparently by torpedo explosions as they lay at anchor in the Gulf of Paria, between Trinidad and Venezuela.

Before that attack, Axis U-boats shelled shore establishments on the Dutch island of Aruba, also in the Caribbean, and sank or damaged vessels in that area.

Used Typewriters Will Be Rationed

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP) The Office of Price Administration announced a plan today for severely limited rationing of used typewriters, under temporary price ceilings, and simultaneously lifted all restrictions on typewriter rentals.

Rationing will begin April 13 under supervision of local rationing boards, with prices on the used machines limited at March 5 levels. Rental charges also are fixed under the 60-day emergency ceiling, which is effective immediately.

Stocks of new typewriters, now frozen, are not affected by the order, but OPA said the War Production Board was expected to allocate some new machines for rationing soon.
